Chinese Vases

Spike is amazed how big these two Chinese porcelain vases are. They are so big they are on display in the Glass Room and can be seen from outside the museum.

The two vases were made especially for Julius Brenchley on his visit to China, between 1850-1860. They were donated to the museum in the 1870's. The images on it include lion-dog (temple guardians) handles and moulded lizards, and the vase is covered in landscapes and lots of people. They are 133cm tall which is taller than some of Spike's friends.

Next time you visit the museum or take a walk in Brenchley Gardens, have a look up at the high glass windows at the side of the museum and you will see the vases.

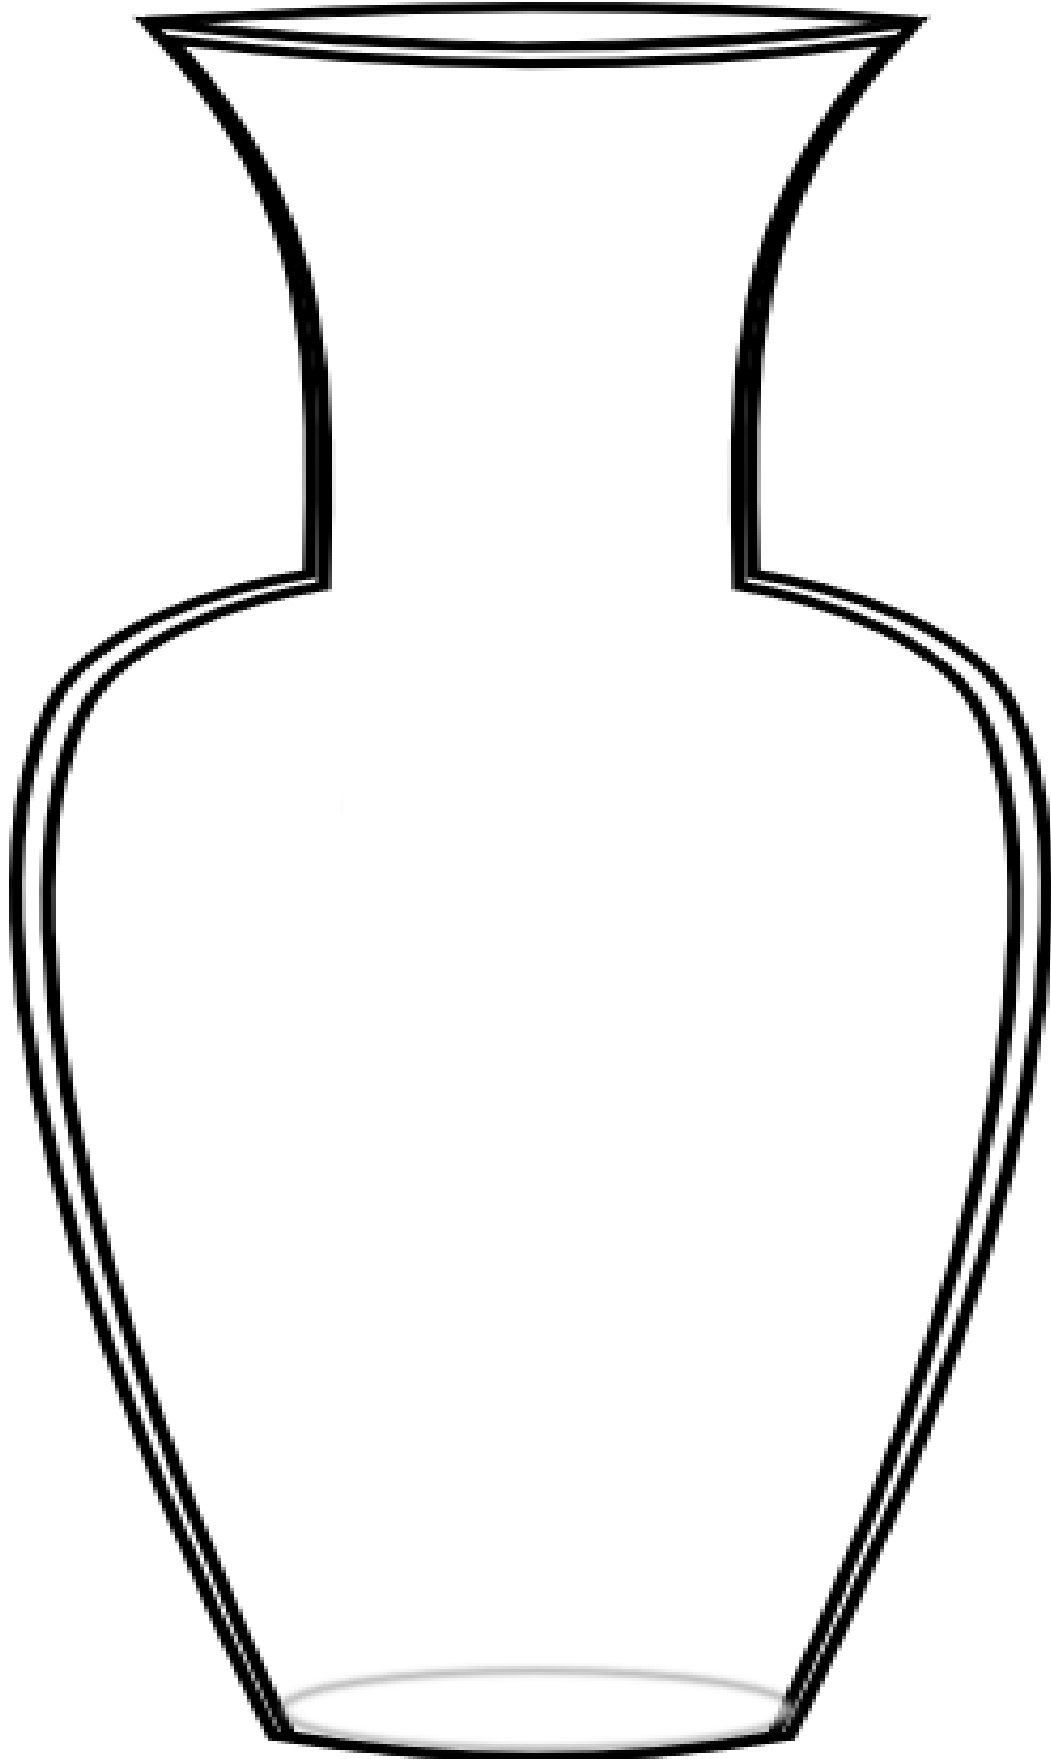

Activity; Decorate your own vase. Use some of the pictures here to help inspire your decorations.

Or colour your own Chinese inspired vase. An outline vase and colouring sheet are on the next pages.
