SECRET PLACES; A view from the window

When Spike was exploring the museum he found some places that visitors don't usually go. He went up into the herbarium, where historic pressed plant samples are stored and found a window covered in diamond shapes. The view he saw was of the carpark and Brenchley Gardens. If you visit Brenchley Gardens (when it's safe) and look at the back of the Museum, look up towards the rook and you might spot Spike's window. Don't worry we've not left him there while we are closed.

Spike would like to know what the view from your window is like? Choose a window in your house and recreate the view. You could draw, paint, collage, make a model, photograph or create in another way. It would be great to see some of these shared by tagging @MaidstoneMusuem and #SpikeDinosAdventures

Spike will share more pictures and information about the hidden places in the museum over the next few weeks.

See you next week for some more of Spike's Daily Activities.

Here's a badge for you to cut out and keep.
